On the 20. June 2012 in Carson City – state Nevada a local girl named Sandra caught her uncle on the wheelchair red-handed setting fire to his neighbour's car.

Her name was Sandra Molic and she accused her uncle of setting the car ablaze. She was summoned to the court to testify what she had seen. Sandra stated: "It was 20. June and I nipped into a supermarket because our fridge was devoid of food". "Upon coming back home I caught a glimpse of fire in the vicinity of our house". "I was frantic with apprehension that something had happened to my uncle who I was living with". "When I came closer I noticed something which I never thought would come about and it left me completely and utterly perplexed". "My uncle Patrick was a perpetrator of making fire paradoxilly". "He poured petrol on the bonnet of a car and struck a match by virtue of empty jerry cans of petrol beside the burning car". "Fire was penetrating rapidly, engulfing other cars and commenced to spiral out of control". "Subsequently I called a fire brigade and they came within 10 minutes". On the basis of Sandra's testimony a judge brought in a verdict and namely accused Patrick of arson and sentenced him to 5 years in prison.

In the end Patrick pleaded guilty and came clean: He said that in the last few years he had born a grudge against his neighbour Steven because his dogs were incessantly barking and he was reluctant to restrain them. He had reprimanded him a couple of times and Steven ignored him. However the last straw which drove him to distraction was that dogs started howling at night. Hence he decided to wreak vengeance.
